CCAF Q&A

Q. Is CCAF an accredited institution?

A. CCAF is accredited through Air University by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC). This is the same body which accredits the Universities of Florida, Georgia and Alabama, to name a few.

Q. What is a CCAF affiliate school?

A. A CCAF affiliate school is a technical training or other training school that meets all requirements to award college credit for approved courses. This means that our students are not just going through tech school, they are sitting in college classrooms participating in college level courses! This also means that our 6,000+ faculty members are considered collegiate instructors.

Q. How does CCAF benefit the Air Force?

A. CCAF awarded over 2 million semester hours of credit through affiliate schools in 2014. This credit does not need to be duplicated at a civilian college for degree attainment. At a cost of $250 per semester hour, this translates into a tuition cost savings of more than 500 million dollars, which can nearly pay for 2 brand new F-22 fighter aircraft.

Q. How does CCAF benefit its enlisted members?

A. An Associate in Applied Science degree from the CCAF formally recognizes demonstrated proficiency in the member's career field and attainment of established academic criteria that are based on Air Force core competencies. The degree emphasizes one of our most important core competencies of developing Airmen.
